MORE INTEREST IN 173

Honorable Arthur H. Rothe
County Judge
Hondo, Texas.

Re: Highway 173

Dear Judge:

I have read with much interest the letter from Mr. F. S. Maddox, District Engineer, to you, as published in the Hondo Anvil. We join with you in feeling proud of the interest taken in this by our excellent highway department. This highway has always had a great deal to merit their attention.
We believe upon the completion of this highway a great benefit will accrue to your section and to ours.

Corpus Christi, Texas
October 11, 1941.Yours truly,
W. N. NEYLAND.

QUIHI NOTES

Ushering in the winter season, quite a number of our folks around here have been troubled with various kinds of colds, almost representing an epidemic. Fortunately there was nothing serious to it, despite the heavy annoyance. Only Mrs. Rosina Boehle was bedfast and then hospitalized and now under the care of the doctor and the nurse, Mrs. John Balzen, recuperating, as we hope, in the latter's residence at Hondo.

Warren, Arizona, is well represented here these days. Mrs. Henry Bohlen is here for some time, and we also had the pleasure of again meeting Mr. and Mrs. George E.
Hardt and their two children. Texas does not lose its force of attraction.

May we have a full line-up of active contributors and a capacity crowd for our Luther League program in November. Give the assignments your kind attention, please: Select readings, Miss Jarline Balzen, Mrs. Andrew Eckhart, Mr. Arnold Reitzer; vocal selections, Mrs.
Herbert Moehring, Mr. Oscar Grell and Mr. Alfred Boehle; instrumental number, Miss Hertha Weeber. It's all to the glory of God and for the enjoyment of those who are discriminating in their tastes and select the best possible within their reach. We invite you, of course.

There will be no services for the balance of this month. The next service will be on November the 2nd: Sunday school and Bible class at 9:30; German service at 10:30 A. M.
The deacons have their monthly meeting in the morning. No evening service. The invitation for you and yours still goes.

—C. W.

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

One thing this country could use more of, is scrapple. Here and there are folks who will not savvy about scrapple, so I will show off and tell them.

I am thinking about scrapple on account of the mornings getting cooler. On cool mornings you can eat more. When everybody learns about scrapple for breakfast you will hear more alarm clocks going off earlier.
And if you get up early, you gotta go to bed the night before, before 3 A. M. And if the nation gets to going to bed before 3 A. M., it will have a steadier head next day, and we can maybe get our country halfway back to normal versus the new school, hoot-owl planned system we been putting up with. So it is easy to see what more scrapple could do for the nation.

Philadelphia scrapple or "pan-haas," which some people call it, and the kind my Susie makes, is boiled yellow cornmeal, salt and liver sausage. Fried next morning, in slices, for breakfast, brother, I warn you now, you will want to rush right out and buy the Mrs. a new hat or something—which is not a bad hint either, for the Mrs. to work on.

Yours with the low down, JO SERRA.

TRAGIC POLITICAL HORSEPLAY

The newspaper dispatches of June 26 said: "Special senate committee investigating the defense program warns that rationing of electricity in homes is threatened unless potential power facilities are developed to produce aluminum."

On June 27, one day later, OPM said, in news dispatches, that the problem of power had been solved and that construction of new aluminum plants could be started immediately. No new power plants had been built in the 24-hour intervening period.

The newspaper reports quoted these two government agencies, one warning of an electric shortage, one day, and the other saying the problem had been solved, the next day, illustrate loose and ill-considered thinking and planning which discourage industry.

The same condition applies to oil.
No sooner was that industry placed under political domination as a defense measure, than the people were told there would be a fuel shortage. Instead of a constructive program to help oil industry meet an emergency which had been thrust upon it, a scare was thrown into it and the public as an answer to appropriating domestic tankers for the aid of Great Britain.

During the last World War, the public was told by supposedly responsible sources that our oil reserves were practically exhausted.
Many people actually believed that new sources of fuel would have to be found to run automobiles. The oil industry went ahead, however, and perfected drilling methods, refining methods, and found new oil fields, with the result that our supply of oil products was increased to unheard of levels.

No two industries come closer to the average home and citizen than do electricity and oil. It is tragic that politics too often dominates non-political administration of our indispensable natural resources.

The American people will go without electricity and they will go without gasoline, when necessary to conserve these energy sources, but loose political talk from governmental sources about rationing electricity, and shortages of gasoline and fuel oil for automobiles and domestic use, should be curbed in the interest of national defense and sane action at home, until such action is known to be necessary.—Industrial News Review.

It is said that for the army maneuvers in Louisiana, where a half million soldiers have been in a giant sham-battle, for the past several weeks, 23,514,000 gallons of gasoline was the amount for that display. It is said that this amount of gasoline would operate an automobile around the world 9,406 times, or would run one car at 50 miles an hour without stopping for 53 years.
This is a fair illustration of the way the government is throwing away money for no good purpose. The largest 'charge account' in the world is what Uncle Sam charges up to the tax-payers of the United States." Thus comments an exchange, and the deplorable part of it is the truth behind the charge "of no good purpose". Give every American a gun and ammunition to acquire skill in shooting it and there will be no need for "playing" war games at bankrupting cost to the taxpayers.

INFORMATION FOR SELECTEES

Enlisted men who were in the registration age brackets on October 16, 1940, or July 1, 1941, and who have not already registered under the Selective Training and Service Act must register when discharged from the military establishment, General J. Watt Page, State Director of Selective Service said today.

Although members of the regular military establishment are relieved from registration as long as they are in service, General Page said, they must register when they are released from the armed forces.

While the majority of such ex-service men probably are not liable for induction as selectees, the State Director pointed out that there are some men who are discharged from the Regular Army after completing one year of training and who, consequently, are liable for induction under the Selective Service law. The Selective Training and Service Act of 1940, as amended, General Page declared, relieves from liability, for peacetime training and service under the Act only those Regulars who have satisfactorily served as an officer or enlisted man for at least three consecutive years in the Regular Army, Navy, Marine Corps or Coast Guard, or any enlisted man honorably discharged from the Regular Army or the Coast Guard within six months prior to the completion of his regular three-year period of enlistment.

Those one-year ex-service Regulars who are liable for further military training may enlist in the National Guard of the States in which they will live or join the Enlisted Reserve Corps, General Page said.

Selectees who are relieved from active duty with the Army, General Page emphasized, are transferred to the reserve as provided by law and will be classified by their local boards as being members of the military establishment. Although they are not liable for additional service as selectees after completion of their period of training and relief from active duty, they may be called to active duty as members of the reserve, he said.

Harm Gerdes, who was one of the guests at the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kothmann and 40 years ago was a cattle salesman for the Kothmann commission company and now a ranchman and a cattle raiser in Medina County at Quini, was at the stockyards Tuesday with a load of calves consigned to Kothmann & Sons and it was the occasion to recall the old days. While here he went out to J. W. Kothmann's home and had a visit with Mr. Kothmann.

Gerdes recalled the time many years ago when he drove in from Quini in a wagon with a load of calves and sold them on the San Antonio market for $1.50 a head. It was a drive of 37 miles and with team and wagon that couldn't move off a walk and it was a long hard drive. There were no paved roads in those days.

It was a time of dry weather and cattle raisers were getting rid of their six-month-old calves in order to lighten the pasture and permit the cows to dry up and put on some flesh. They could carry the cows through in that way. One of the Rothes in the western part of the county, too far to drive in at that time, tried to sell his calves at 50 cents a head because of the drought.

Gerdes is frequently on the market with calves and other livestock that are brought in by truck within a couple of hours where in the old days it was more than a day's drive by wagon, and the improved conditions for marketing at the yards now can be appreciated by those of Mr. Gerdes' generation.—Cattle Clatter.

Stocking calf trade proved extremely dull with sales rated weak to 25c or more lower. Good and choice steer calves commanded $9.75-11.00, few $11.25, with heifers at $9.50-10.00. Good yearling stockers reached $10.00. Stocker cows brought $5.50-7.25.

SHEEP: Estimated salable and total receipts 800. All classes in the sheep and goat division appeared generally steady. A few lots medium and good shorn aged wethers made $4.25-5.00. A part load well finished around 95 lb. goats reached $4.25. Other slaughter goats commanded $3.50-4.00 with cull "boners" down to $2.50. Stocker lambs moved for further finish at $7.50-8.50.

OUR MONTHLY MEDITATION

Then answered the Jews and said unto Him, What sign shewest thou unto us, seeing that thou doest these things? John 2:18.

Jesus had been cleansing the temple, tipping over the money changers' tables, chasing the alarmed hawksters and higglers and their stocks, swinging his scourge on the protesting and resisting shop-keepers, shattering their ingrained customs and "time-sanctioned rights" with the voice of unimpeachable authority: Make not my Father's house an house of merchandise.

Where would His scourge blows fall today? Fat and fast profits in the wrong way at the wrong place—the underlying scheme—where much is expected for little, yea, even for nothing, and "where the happiness of the winner involves the misery of the loser," a tendency in many a heart, all this has publicly been dis-countenanced and scourged by the whip of civil laws. So we hear. In 1939 we find over 70,000 engaged in the making of slot machines. About 400 millions were placed in bets annually on our race tracks. Over 500 millions were collected by punch board operators. In one state alone over 20 millions annually for five successive years, were paid through mutual windows in dog races. Lotteries flourished for many years in Europe. Queen Elizabeth, in 1559, pressed her people for subscriptions in a lottery she had authorized. And when the Continental Congress tried to replenish its coffers by a lottery, a drawing for 5 millions, George Washington bought the first ticket. The Faneuil Hall at Boston was rebuilt by the funds from a lottery. Ireland sets aside nearly 47 millions for hospitals from the money accumulated from the Irish sweepstakes, as does West Australia provide a million annually for hospitals from taxes on gambling, though the general public concedes that the gambler is always the loser, and that he not only loses his hard-earned cash, but also all love and incentive for honest industry and

RAYE

"WYOMING WILDCAT"—Friday and Saturday, Don "Red" Barry and Julie Duncan in a thrilling six-gen drama. Red Barry sets out to erase the stigma of his father's past.

"THE PEOPLE VS. DR. KILDARE"—Sunday and Monday, another fine story of young Dr. Kildare. His newest adventure brings him into direct conflict with the law, charged with malpractice by a lovely ice skater upon whom he performed an emergency operation. A notable cast includes Lew Ayres, Lionel Barrymore, Laraine Day, Bonita Granville, Alma Krueger, Red Skelton, Paul Stanton, Diana Lewis, and many others.

"MANPOWER"—Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, a robust yarn about men who risk their lives to mend high tension power lines that storms tear down. A splendid cast, headed by the triple-threat star trio of Edward G. Robinson, Marlene Dietrich and George Raft, includes Alan Hale, Frank McHugh, Egon Brecher, Ward Bond, Eve Arden, Joyce Compton, Lucia Carroll, Anthony Quinn, Barbara Pepper and many others.

And are church premises invaded by such doubtful merchandising? For the support of the Kingdom of God, for local church enterprises, for charity? Dr. Gallup places church lotteries at 29%, a higher percentage than any other contrivance where money is not made and used as a means of fair exchange of values, and where the motive of charity (love) is mostly out of question. Where would these scourge-blows fall today?

That temple purge of Jesus did not go unchallenged. His action is questioned. His authority is doubted. The Jews, in particular those who drew high rents from those merchandise concessions, ask for His credentials, a legal certificate for His right of interference. What right has He to break down a custom of long standing, to curtail their profits, to disturb their "peaceful" transactions, the arrangement arisen from emergency and necessity? Is He representing law and order, the exponent of a new order of things, or is He merely a meddler, an interloper, a fanatic misguided by His own narrow notions? What has He to say in His own defense?

Should He remain silent, as so often when He faced callous adversaries? Should He disclose His glorious authority as the ambassador, the Son of God? Should He enlarge on the fundamental purpose of the temple; on the pernicious influence of greed and selfishness rampant on these sacred premises; on the difference between piety and piety, between worldliness and godliness, lip-service and heart-service? Should He dwell on the essential difference between pharisaic self-righteousness as demonstrated by their works, their offerings and shallow, perfunctory ceremonialism and the righteousness which must be procured by faith in Him? Would they have understood? What's His answer? We'll hear it later.

—C. W.

Summer is a suitable time to prepare the soil where shrubs and trees are to be planted in the winter. According to Sadie Hatfield, Extension Service specialist in landscape gardening, such beds should be cleaned of weeds and plants, spaded carefully, and fertilized with barnyard manure and leaf mold. This material should be thoroughly mixed with the soil. Before adding the fertilizer it might be well to remove a portion of the soil because building up the shrub bed will cause the water to shed off and thereby may deprive it of needed moisture, Miss Hatfield says. It is well also to spade the beds very deeply because they will not be disturbed after the shrubs are planted. Keeping the beds cleanly cultivated until winter also helps make the soil better for growing plants. Advance preparation helps to insure good growth in shrubs and trees when they are put out. "Disappointment over poor growth often is the result of inadequate preparation," the specialist says.

TOUCH-DOWN TACTICS

UNIVERSITY OF MINNESOTA
by
Bernie Bierman
Head Football Coach

This is the third in a series of six outstanding diagram plays by leading college coaches from Grantland Rice's new Citrus Service Football Guide.

THE reverse play diagrammed above has shown consistently good results for us over a period of years.

The fullback receives the ball, takes a short lead to the right and passes it to the wingback who has made a half pivot to his left and continues around the left side as fast as he can. This play depends largely on speed, and everything has to be done in a precision-like manner.

Although this diagram shows an unbalanced line to the right we use this same formation from which we run plays through any spot of the line, or throw forward passes.

The principal blocking assignments are on the line of scrimmage until the play gets into the open field. For that reason it can readily be seen that speed and precision are paramount if this play is to succeed.

The Difference

An inspector, examining a class in religious teaching, asked the following question of a little girl, inquiring it for a catch:

"What was the difference between Noah's Ark and Joan of Arc?"

He was not a little surprised when the child, answering, said:

"Noah's Ark was made of wood, and Joan of Arc was maid of Orleans."

Destruction is valueless, but building up something which makes humanity happy is of importance.—Goethe.

For his gallantry a Scottish soldier was given a decoration. A week or so later a pal asked him:

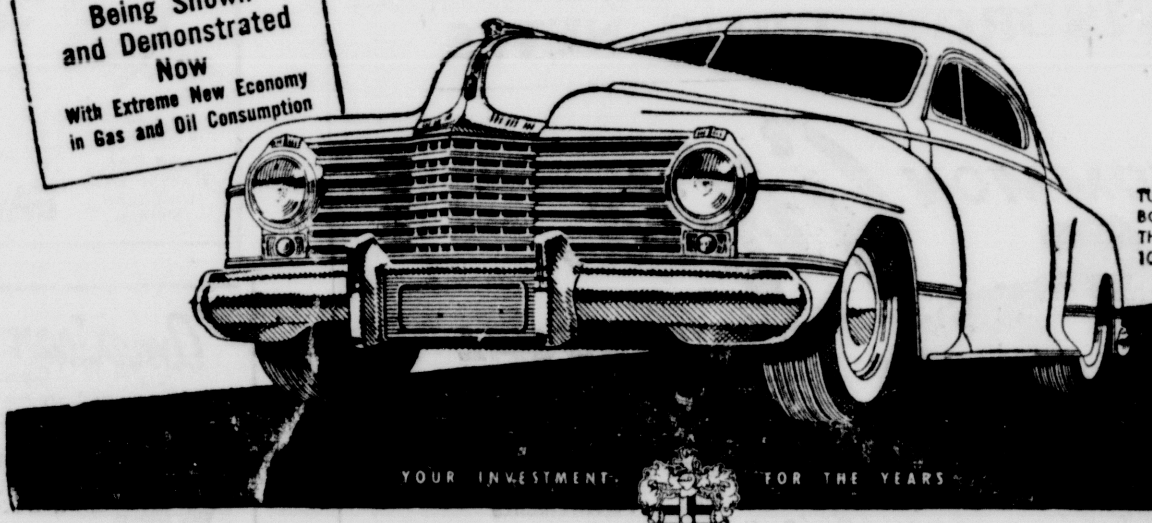

"And what does the wife think of your medal, Sandy?"

"She doesn't ken yet," was the reply. "It's no' my turn to write."

ATTEND DISTRIBUTORS MEETING

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Schweers, representing the Pearl Beer Distributorship of this city, attended the San Antonio Brewing Association's Annual Distributors Meeting and 56th Birthday Party in San Antonio, Saturday, October 18.

The advertising, merchandising and production plans for 1942 were outlined by B. B. McGimsey, Vice-President and General Manager, H. M. (Pat) O'Brien, Sales Manager, Otto A. Koehler, Vice-President in Charge of Production, and Jack N. Titluk of the Pitluk Advertising Company.

Week for week, month for month during the first nine and one-half months of 1941 the sales for Pearl Beer were the greatest, by season comparison, in the Brewery's 55 years' history, according to McGimsey, O'Brien and Koehler.

Plans for increased production, bottling, and distribution have been authorized for 1942 to take care of the persistent increasing demand for Pearl Beer. Today, as every day, during the current year, more people than ever before in the Brewery's history are saying, "Bottle of Pearl, Please."

While the distributors were being shown the merchandising, production, and advertising plans for 1942, the distributors' wives were given a sight-seeing trip over San Antonio, visiting commercial, military, and historic points of interest.

The meeting was closed with a banquet, Plaza Hotel, music by Don Galvan's orchestra interspersed with American and Mexican entertainers and entertainment. Lew Valentine, NBC Coast to Coast announcer, acted as Master of Ceremony.

CONSECRATION SERVICE FOR FATHER FITZSIMON AT SAN ANTONIO, OCT. 22

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 11.—Another native Texan will take his place in the American Catholic hierarchy with the consecration in San Fernando Cathedral here Oct. 22 of the Most Rev. Laurence J. FitzSimon as Bishop of Amarillo. The Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, apostolic delegate to Washington, will officiate at the service and two other native Texans, Coajutor Bishop Mariano S. Garriga of Corpus Christi and the Most Rev. Sidney M. Metzger, auxiliary to the Archbishop of Santa Fe, N. M., will be co-consecrators.

Archbishop Robert E. Lucey of San Antonio will deliver the sermon and in the same service will be invested by Archbishop Cicognani with the pallium, a white woolen, circular band, symbol of archiepiscopal authority, which is worn by the Pope and Archbishops during certain church ceremonies.

Bishop-Designate FitzSimon, 46, was born in San Antonio, a son of the late Dr. John T. FitzSimon, widely known in San Antonio medical circles of the early nineties. In 1896 the family moved to Castrolville and it was there that the new head of the Amarillo diocese spent his boyhood and took his preliminary courses in the parochial school. In 1907 he entered St. Anthony's College in San Antonio to begin his studies for the priesthood.

In 1911 the late Bishop John W. Shaw sent young FitzSimon to the American College in Rome, but illness prevented the young seminarian from completing his course and he returned to his homeland in 1916. With his return to good health, FitzSimon enlisted in the Navy and served on a minesweeper on North Sea duty during the World War. At the conclusion of the war, he completed his seminary studies with the Benedictines at St. Meinard, Ind., and there he was ordained May 17, 1921.

Father FitzSimon's first assignment was as professor at St. John's Seminary, San Antonio, and his first pastoral work began in 1925 at Runge. Later he served the parishes at Kenedy and Karnes City.

Appointed pastor of St. James Church at Seguin in 1932, Father FitzSimon quickly demonstrated his qualities of civic as well as spiritual leadership and he soon became active in the Rotary Club, Elks lodge, American Legion and as a member of the Guadalupe County parole board. In 1937 he was elected president of the Seguin-Guadalupe County Chamber of Commerce and a year later was named to head the Seguin Centennial Association.

An office he holds now is that of chaplain of the North Sea Mine Force Association, comprised of veterans who served in the North Sea mine barrage.

Bishop-Designate FitzSimon probably is the first and only Catholic prelate to first hear of his elevation to the hierarchy by radio. This entirely unofficial notification occurred while he was driving with the Rev. Fridolin Schneider last Aug. 5, and had his car radio tuned to WOAI, San Antonio, when a newscast announced his appointment to the bishopric of Amarillo.

At the time of his selection by the Pope, Father FitzSimon was serving as chancellor of the San Antonio archdiocese. This appointment came to him from Archbishop Lucey.

Installation and enthronement of the Bishop-Designate is scheduled for Nov. 5 in Amarillo's Sacred Heart Cathedral with Archbishop Lucey officiating. In his new position, he will succeed the archbishop, who was elevated to his present post from the Amarillo bishopric.

GRANDFATHER'S HOME

My grandparents settled this farm in 1880 and lived here 54 years. It is located near the Medina River. Several things make this farm extra special for me. My grandfather did all the work with the help of one man. They built the two-story house of native rock. He made his own plastering. The shade trees planted long ago are still healthy, especially a row of hackberries that form a border on the west side of the house.

WHEN THE GRASSHOPPERS START TO HOP

When the grasshoppers start to hop seems like they're everywhere. They come from east and west and never leave a share. Arriving unexpected they remain undirected, Come without an invitation to make their depredation. They eat everything in sight just to appease their appetite. Jump and eat and fly away—what good are they anyway?

They could give me a happy rest and make themselves a welcome guest. If they would just decide to eat the yellow dandelion sweet Right there on my lawn of gold blooms and roots that always hold.

It would mean so much to me if they, and their family tree Would create an appetite for the vitamins in this blight. Instead they leave my garden bare and fly away without a care.

Training For Defense

By Rufus T. Strohm

Dean, International Correspondence Schools

THERE is little doubt that some of the methods and measures that have been instituted recently by industry as emergency features will become permanent, especially those concerned with the training of skilled workmen. There are many reasons why

Rufus T. Strohm American industry prior to the war in Europe had neglected apprentice training programs; however, that situation is being rapidly corrected.

Probably the best equipped industries in the United States at the outset of the defense program, as far as training goes, were those of the New England states. There long-term apprentice systems and state industrial schools had long existed and were quickly geared to defense needs. In Connecticut and Massachusetts, where many small but vital industries are gathered closely geographically, community training programs, financed by the state but definitely operated by and for the industries of the area, have been successfully and rapidly developed.

From the experience of the years and the accelerated experience of meeting emergency training problems of the last few months, industry is learning much. When the crisis passes, it will have at its command the greatest army of skilled workmen in world history—and the greatest plant facilities.

Now is a good time for management to begin thinking about the future. Needs of the moment obviously must be the major consideration but lessons learned should not be forgotten. Some day the army of skilled workmen now being created must be utilized and still further expanded. It is a problem that must be answered by industry itself.

A PATH REMEMBERED AND DEAR

Bends there a path so remembered and dear As those we trod in childhood year? Or ever grew a sweeter flower Than was discovered at an early hour While grass-blades held the morning dew And flax in bloom rivaled heaven's blue?

Where the spiderwebs draggled and gray— They spun them there late yesterday How they did gleam at shining noon! Were threads of gold beneath the moon— Like sticky hands on arms and face From tree to tree the pathway'd lace.

Beyond the turn the tinkling bell Recalled a mind from witchery's spell, And horses deep in the dew-wet grass In single file around the bending pass.

Far, far behind in blissful joy Came the whistled tune of the days herd-boy!

—LELA M. WILLHITE.

Washington Snapshots by JAMES PRESTON

Soaring prices to be held down.
More billions for lease-lend program.
Neutrality act revision. Overhauling of priorities system. Congress and the Administration have a couple of things to attend to these days. But a good many of the key New Dealers —yes, they're still around—have nevertheless managed to eke out a little spare time for planning. This time they're planning about the industrial system and its rearrangement after the war.

Cartels for control of big industry —like automobile, steel, and the others. "Balanced abundance"—the phrase belongs to Vice President Wallace—is the keynote, and of course nobody is against that. Coated with such titles, many of the planners think industry will continue to take in big doses the regimentation which it has accepted as a necessary evil of a war economy.

Some of the planners envision the extraordinary power of the Supply Priorities and Allocation Board as a part of our permanent economy when the war emergency is history.
Take a look at these powers, which are revolutionizing our industrial setup. In fact take two looks—once from the viewpoint of the present "unlimited national emergency", and again from the viewpoint of the post-emergency days to come. Acceptance of defense orders is mandatory.
Simplification and standardization of industrial products are being requested. Allocation of raw material for civilian as well as defense industries is planned, so that the government for practical purposes controls inventories of private industry.

Industry, concerned with viewpoint No. 1, has been in the foreground for those asking for centralized defense planning. But as a return for industry's wholehearted cooperation, and back-breaking effort, the planners are scheming to take full advantage of the regimentation made necessary by the emergency and accepted by industry as part of the whole series of sacrifices defense is asking of everyone.

The planned economy boys feel that the critical times have given a rebirth to over-all economic planning that they just can't afford to let go.
Not so long ago their schemes were to a large extent discredited by the failure of the staggering spending programs to provide incentive for employment and new enterprise. In a year they have seen more centralization take place than they were able to obtain in eight years of constant effort. And they want to be certain the regimentation is "for keeps".

Some of the planners like to talk of what's happening in Great Britain.
But if they're hoping that the British

A WISE DECISION

By Glory Brumby.

Lawyer Ashby removed his handsome horn-rimmed glasses from his piercing blue eyes, wiped both the glasses and his eyes with his crimson silk handkerchief, adjusted his crimson silk four-in-hand, scratched his thinly thatched dome, and appeared to be on the threshold of an inquiry.

"What on earth? When? Who?"
he spluttered in a most unprofessional manner, for James Ashby was one of the most astute inquisitors of the American Bar. His sharp eyes blink-ed rapidly and he wiped them again with his silk handkerchief. Then he laid a lean brown hand on the soft white one of his only child, Jewel Ashby, which young lady was disporting herself and the latest thing in freakish hosiery on the big mahogany desk in her father's sanctum, the third finger of her left hand adorned with a brand-new diamond solitaire which flickered joyously in the sunlight.

James Ashby, altho a modern lawyer, was a lean-back to the good old days preceding these bad old days of boy friends and cuties, bobbed hair and knickerbockers, latch-keys and companionate marriage. By that is meant that his mind reverted back to chaperons and family prayers, many petticoats and "till death" marriage contracts, and even in his general practice he eschewed divorce absolutely.

Jewel Ashby was twenty-one, as pretty as a magazine cover, and her education had never been completed as she was still learning something new every day from the young moderns who had been her associates ever since she had come home from the French convent three years ago.
She laid her jeweled hand on her father's brown one, her soft eyes like moonlight reflected in a violet pool, and the gladness of her heart reflected in her eyes. And said in her wistful appealing way, "Daddy, I told you that I am going to marry Jack Riverton next month."

James Ashby surveyed the girlish beauty of his daughter with proper pride, and checked himself hurriedly, startled by the thoughts that came into his mind. For the last two years he had expected something like this, only the fellow had not been half-baked young Riverton. Why the idiot was only working his way thru Medical School and it would be at least two years before he would be able to prescribe Castor Oil for a tabby cat or a pampered Pekingese.
It was unthinkable. Absolute presumption. Maybe he'd be wanting alimony from Jewel, and Ashby wiped his crimson forehead with his crimson silk handkerchief. Then he frowned and snorted and looking up at his daughter. He saw the happiness pass out of her eyes and the color creep up in her fair skin and he knew that she felt hurt at his delayed expression of approval.

"Aren't you glad, Daddy?" she queried, stroking the lean, brown hand.

"Jewel, I am certainly surprised and not a little disappointed. At least, I expected to be consulted on such a serious matter," and Ashby's thin fingers tightened on his daughter's wrist and hurt her soft skin.

Jewel's face lighted up. She released herself and jumped down from her perch on the desk top and stood beside her father's chair, her slender left arm caressingly about his long, thin brown neck. Her silvery laugh tinkled in his ear. "Oh, daddy, how you scared me. You looked so indignant for a moment that I thought that you were going to object to Jack in old time fashion, to exert your bewhiskered revered prerogative, so to speak. You simply can't get it into your fossilized old headpiece that parents don't use prerogatives in this enlightened era. All such things belong beside muton-chop whiskers and flannel nighties."

James Ashby blinked weakly. In his profession he straddled no fences or beat feebly about the bush, but somehow with this daughter it was different. They were so close and yet so distant. The father-love in James Ashby was in many ways akin to mother-love, yet there was some part of Jewel over which he had no control. She was a dear, obedient daughter and had brought nothing but pride and joy to his graying are open again for peaceful trading and men of business can turn their attention to their real task of feeding and clothing the crowded millions of these islands, the shackles which now bind enterprise and the plans which are to bind it in the future will alike be repudiated, because such restrictions will mean the cramping of trade at a time when the nation's recovery will depend upon the utmost trading energy. The days of laissez-faire have gone forever and the world will probably never again see an era of cut-throat competition—but the alternative to laissez-faire is not a rigidly controlled and centrally directed community. The alternative is a community enjoying the maximum of freedom in the conduct of its affairs and enduring only the irreducible minimum of control. Planning is only another name for regimentation, and regimentation means stag-nation, and stagnation in its turn means death to a nation which must always depend upon a vigorous and adaptable trading system. The only healthy plan which can be devised at this time is a plan to end at the earliest possible moment all those restraints and interferences which the war has created. Fresh plans to increase such interferences and restraints are the last thing needed by a nation facing the most difficult period of reconstruction in its commercial history."

locks, yet he wished that her mother had been alive today.

Jewel continued merrily, "Besides, old dear, most girls nowadays don't say a word until the marriage certificate is safe in the vanity case and then they spill the beans by wire.
There are so many slips betwixt and between, you know. This is an age of uncertainty and indecision and last minute regrets." Jewel laid her pink cheek against her father's tanned one. The bond between them was an exquisite thing and she adored her long-headed, handsome father.
Her love responded to his.

Ashby was about to interrupt but Jewel silenced him with an entrancing gesture of her pretty hand,
"And what's more," she continued undaunted, smiling up under her father's shaggy, pensive brows, "Didn't you and mother keep everything an earthly secret from Grandpa and Grandma Mitcham for an age as long as a comet's tail. It's just nature repeating a wee, small part of itself. The biggest and best part I have let you in on, old scout, and I'm giving you a chance to wear a white begonia in your buttonhole.
But some people are never grateful even for mammoth mercies," and the permanent pout of her baby lips increased considerably.

James Ashby drew his pretty daughter onto his neatly trousered navy blue knees and thought how much this frail slip of a girl was like the one who had become his wife while he was still a hard-working young law student, and how her people had objected because he was not established in his profession, and they had done it on the sly. He remembered that he had felt like a thief, and their happiness had been diminished somewhat thereby. Then she had gone on, leaving him this priceless Jewel. Was he going to do to her what they had done to her mother. He would encourage her to elope if he refused his consent and lessen her chances of happiness.

The black cloud passed leaving a glowing blue sky. The telephone bell on the shiny desk tinkled. "Yes, this is Ashby. Who's talking?
You're Riverton... Jack. Yes, she's here and you have my consent and my blessing, young fellow."

"Daddy, you're the highest rung, and I'll stay married for keeps."
"You will have to, for I don't handle the divorce stuff," said Lawyer Ashby throatily.

A WARNING TO WOMEN

By O. M. Diaz

Some women do too much for their own good, and because people praise their tremendous vitality, they even try to do more than their constitution will stand. It is true that some women are extremely energetic, but, is it a good habit to exert all the strength at once; in a few years?

Would it be wise to undermine one's health at the cost of continuous activity? Is it preferable to look years older than one really is, for the price of a too strenuous life?
For the mere flattering words of our would-be friends—"She's a wonder, so full of pep."

A housewife should not neglect her house, her husband, her children.
Rather, she should let them understand that she would not pretend to wait on their every wish. She should make them understand that she has to have her own uninterrupted relaxation, for which she should take her time.

Her other dependabilities should have their own allotted time but no more. Husband and children should have their own pleasures as well as their own responsibilities. They should not depend on the women folk for everything.

I have in mind a woman who is very efficient, both in the house and out of it. This woman belongs to several clubs, in which she takes great pride; even to the extent of contributing articles, poems, and pamphlets for the benefit of the club members.

She has two children, makes the girl's clothes, besides her own. She does all the housework without outside help. She goes hunting and fishing with her husband whenever the opportunity arises, unmindful of sleeping on the ground if it is necessary, or getting up at 4 in the morning to get an early start.

Sometimes she never gets to bed until 2 in the morning, as she must finish the daughter's new dress or wash dishes. Her beautiful daughter could not do it. She doesn't know how and she doesn't care, since if he tried to learn she would spoil her shining nails.

The result of this strenuous activity on the mother is well marked on her overwrought nerves, her lined neck and face, her red-rimmed, puffed eyes, which denote the neglect, the abuse she has placed on them.

Of course, she has no time to relax. She would not take the time, since she prefers the flattering words of her friends to her pitiful, neglected appearance. She prefers to be in everything. Without her counsel, her supervision, no one seems to do anything right. She calls this pleasure, but in my opinion, she is cheating herself of all the pleasure a moderate, happy life should be.

She has a schedule worked out in order to accomplish so much in as much time. It makes no difference whether she feels below par in her health or not, the things have to be done and that's that.

A well balanced life should be neither all leisure nor all work. The self-imposed leisure is just as bad as the self-imposed slavery. The results are about the same.

This woman has a self-imposed slavery which she apparently enjoys, but her countenance denotes the severe strain in which she struggles.
She is simply scraping herself of all her beauty, her good humor, her very life without the least suspecting it.

Why? Because she has no time to watch herself, she has no time to relax, and she would not take the time.
Thus the end is prematurely at hand, and when nothing but the shell is left that will also depart.

Weather conditions are favorable for continued high populations of the screwworm fly over the western half of the state, and no marked summer decrease is indicated. According to Cameron Siddall, Extension Service entomologist, prevalence of this condition will lead to very high populations in the sheep and goat areas of the Balcones Escarpment and Edwards plateau. Siddall quotes D. C. Parman, associate entomologist of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant quarantine at Uvalde, that during the last half of June the adult population of the fly on the western escarpment indicated to have been the highest on record for the last six years. In view of the threat, Siddall cautions that all wounded animals should be kept where they can be watched and treated, and that all wounds should be healed before October 1. The pupal, or ground, stage of the fly begins to lengthen in October and any worms maturing in wounds that month may produce active flies in December. In practice it has been indicated, and laboratory test substantiate, that if no breeding was allowed in October and November, the fly would be eradicated. But on the escarpment area, Siddall explains, "elimination of breeding is not possible." Decreasing the population of the fly as far as feasible by preventing breeding in October and November and then getting the small carryover to the midwinter activity, allows two strategic moves on the annual cycle. It is indicated that winter treatment alone on ranches proved advantageous last season.

Walter Garth, Jr., of Sanford, Maine, has been employed by the Texas Extension Service, effective August 1, to supervise mohair grading in Texas during the fall season.
Director H. H. Williamson announces. Garth was associated with the Texas Mohair grading committee during the fall and winter seasons of 1940-1 in developing proper grades and methods of grading. The committee is composed of mohair producers and warehousemen. W. R.
Nisbet, Extension Service animal husbandman, with whom Garth will work, said that it was the purpose to develop in the early fall season a definition of the standards by which mohair is to be graded. Garth will help define the grades and after these have been accepted by growers, warehousemen, dealers and mills, effort will be made to have them established as standard grades for the United States. Meanwhile, Nisbet will conduct a series of meetings with growers and warehousemen in all the goat raising counties. The first meeting was held at Norton ranch near Goldthwaite on August 5, and others are scheduled for Bandera, Menard, Sabinal, Junction, Mason, Brady and other points in the Mohair raising region.

The disease black spot on roses means just what the name signifies.
Small black spots form on the leaves, then grow larger. The leaves turn yellow and fall off. Sadie Hatfield, Extension Service specialist in landscape gardening, says if a great many leaves are lost the branches begin drying at the top and continue drying even into the ground.
"Keep leaves on your roses if you want them to thrive," is Miss Hatfield's comment. This can be done by dusting sulphur on the leaves once a week until healthy new leaves have formed.

OWLS MEET FIRST DEFEAT OF SEASON IN NON-CONFERENCE GAME

Last Friday night the Owls met with defeat when they played the Pearsall Mavericks by the score of 14 to 7. The Owls played a good game, but a few fumbles gave Pearsall an advantage and they scored twice.

Following is the play by play description of the game:

First Quarter

To start the ball rolling Pearsall kicked off to the Owls' 30-yd. line where Dawson received it and returned it to the 36-yd. line. Finger then failed to gain. Ney then went off tackle for 7 yards. Hollmig smashed center for a first down, but on the next play Hollmig lost 1 yard. On the try he made up for it and added 6 extra yards. Ney then ran around right end for a first down on Pearsall's 33-yd. line. Finger then made 1-2 yard and caught a pass good for 3 more yards. Hollmig then smashed center again for 2 yards. The Owls then failed to complete a pass to Ney who had gone across the goal. Pearsall then took over. After making one first down they fumbled, and Hondo recovered on their own 49-yd. line. Finger and Ney each netted one yard on the two following plays. Hollmig then smashed through for 2 more yards. He then punted to Pearsall's 20-yd. line. Pearsall then quick-kicked to the Owls' 40-yd. line. Ney failed to gain on the first play and Finger lost 5 yards on the next one. Hollmig then punted to Pearsall's 32-yd. line. After no gain Pearsall punted back to Hondo's 39-yd. line where the ball was killed. Time out for Pearsall. Ney then lateraled off to Dawson for 4 yards. Finger failed to gain around left end and Hollmig made 3 yards through center. Hollmig punted to the Mavericks' 20-yd. line and they returned it to the 35-yd. line. End of the first quarter.

Second Quarter

After making about 9 yards Pearsall punted to the Owls' 25-yd. line and Dawson returned the ball to the 30-yd. line. In two consecutive tries Ney made 4 1-2 yards. Finger made 2 yards on the next play. Hollmig punted to the 20-yd. line and Gossett returned it 15 yards. Pearsall losing 7 yards, the ball went over to the Owls on downs on Hondo's 27-yd. line. Ney then traveled around right end for 5 1-2 yards, while Finger ran around left end for more yardage and a first down. Hollmig then made 15 yards and another first down. Time out for Owls. Hollmig swept around right end for 4 yards, and on the next two plays the Owls failed to complete two passes, ending the first half. Score: Hondo 0; Pearsall 0.

Third Quarter

To start the second half, the Owls kicked off to Pearsall's end zone, and the ball was placed on their 20-yd. line. Pearsall quick-kicked to Hondo's 40-yd. line, and the ball was returned to the 50-yd. line by Ney. In the first two plays Hollmig made 8 yards, but the Owls then received a 5-yd. penalty for off-side. Ney then added 2 more yards around right end. Hollmig then punted for the Owls to Pearsall's 20-yd. line and the ball was returned 5 yards.

E. J. Williams blocked the punt and Britsch recovered it for the Owls on Pearsall's 1-ft. line. Hollmig then tried a play off tackle for no gain. Finger smashed center and tallied. He then added the extra point.

The Owls kicked off to Pearsall's 33-yd. line, and the ball was returned only 3 yards. Then after a long drive consisting of 3 first downs, Pearsall also scored and Gossett added the extra point.

Pearsall then kicked off to the Owls' 18-yd. line, and the ball was returned to the 35-yd. line. Finger for no gain. Time out for Pearsall. Next Dawson ran off tackle for 2 yards. The Owls then fumbled on their own 39-yd. line, and Pearsall recovered, ending the third quarter. Score: Hondo 7; Pearsall 7.

Fourth Quarter

The drive of Pearsall's line after their recovery of the ball ended in another tally and Gossett again converted.

Pearsall then kicked off to the Owls' 5-yd. line where Finger took the ball and carried it back 41 yards. But on the next play the Owls fumbled again and Pearsall recovered on their own 49-yd. line. The Mavericks punted then to the Owls' 20-yd. line. Ney was good for 4 yards over right tackle. After Finger made three more yards, Hollmig punted to Pearsall's 34-yd. line. Hondo then received a 15-yd. penalty. Pearsall punted back to Hondo's 15-yd. line. After failing to gain through the center, Hollmig got off a beautiful punt for 60 yards to the Pearsall 35-yd. line. Pearsall then punted back again to Dawson who returned the ball to his own 27-yd. line. After Hollmig made 4 yards around right end, the Owls opened up their aerial attack. The next four plays were passes, three of which were completed for a net gain of 30 yards. But then the game ended with Pearsall leading by the score of 14 to 7.

FOURTH GRADE NEWS

When the boys in the fourth grade were asked this question—"When you can do just as you please, what do you enjoy doing most of all?"—ten out of eleven answered "play football." The other answered "read," which probably accounts for the fact that he made the highest score in our Master Achievement Test in Reading. However, playing football is taking up the play period time. In 1946, there should be some star quarterbacks, if the interest keeps up. The girls in our room are interested in playing paper dolls and reading during their spare time. Mr. Congdon took up quite a few guests included Mesdames Martha Ney, Charles Tondre, James Finger, Ervin Nester, Herman Fohn, Arthur Nester, and Misses Cornelia K. Ursie Lee Rock and Lillian Fohn. The hostess served a delicious course to the guests.

MISS ALMA BATOT HONORED

Miss Alma Batot, bride-elect of William Zerr, was honored with a miscellaneous shower at the High School Auditorium on Sunday afternoon. The hostesses on this occasion were Mesdames Earl Hoesel, Joe Balzen, Don Scott, Henry Pinner, Dan Nester, Thomas Wall, Ervin Nester, Lester Zerr, Martin Nester, Herman Fohn, Henry Nester, James Finger, and Arthur Nester, and Miss Corine Zerr.

Yellow and orange zinnias and cosmos were used in decorating the auditorium. Mrs. Ervin Nester was in charge of the bride's book, which about 75 guests registered.

The honoree, lovely in frock of green crepe with brown accessories, was escorted to her place of honor by little Danny Wall and Elton Hoesel, while Miss Adeline Wolff played a march on the piano. She also played several other selections during the afternoon.

After the many attractive and useful gifts were admired by the recipient and the guests, the hostesses served delicious chicken salad sandwiches, cake, and iced tea with the appointments in the Halloween motif.

Miss Batot and Mr. Zerr will be married on Thursday morning, October 16, at St. Henry's Church in San Antonio.

YOUR CIVILIAN "SIGNAL CORPS"

Platoons of telephone construction men stand ready to roll out in blue-gray Bell trucks to set poles—string wire—install switchboards.

They know that a call for shell fuses now is almost as urgent as a call for serum—that life and death somewhere may hang on the prompt arrival of a shipment of cotton—that spoken messages must carry through the clatter of mighty mill sheds—must cross vast industrial areas and leap the miles between cities.

They're doing a big job—these telephone men—and the telephone operators and repairmen who work with them. They race with your country's vital needs. They struggle to keep up with a demand for service greater than they have ever known before.
